IS YOUR CHILD READY?

Preparing your child for Kindergarten begins at 1-years old. Marianne Hillemeier, Ph.D., completed a study on 8,700 two-year-old children and the amount of vocabulary they knew. Those who used more words at age two had better math and reading skills and fewer behavioral problems when starting Kindergarten.

You can prepare your child for Kindergarten by integrating the following into your family time:

- Practicing reading/writing the letters used in their name helps develop both the motor skills used to hold a pencil and their familiarity with the alphabet.
- Start counting with them. Count the animals in a book or carrots on their plate. Focus on incorporating numbers and counting into their daily life.
- Point out numbers that surround them. Such as page numbers, office numbers, road signs, etc.
- Expand your child's vocabulary by using diverse language during conversations.
- Teach them about books: the front, back, spine, and how we read from left to right. Giving a child the knowledge of books prepares them to read on their own.

A complete Kindergarten assessment list and child milestones for birth thru 5 is on the counter near the sign in/out computer.
